Course information

Course prerequisites
The course covers both theoretical models as well as empirical applications. Solid background in microeconomics and microeconometrics is required.

Learning objectives
Students understand the theoretical relationships in Labor Economics.
Students discuss empirical research in Labor Economics, building on their theoretical knowledge.
Students summarize empirical research in a non-technical way.

Course content
This course introduces into selected topics in the field of Labor Economics. Its aim is to acquaint students with traditional topics in labor economics and to encourage the development of research interest in this field. The topics covered in the course include Labor Supply, Human Capital, Unemployment, and Discrimination.

Students will get to know state-of-the-art theoretical and empirical models to analyze these important topics in labor economics. After this course, students will be able to understand and critically analyze empirical research papers, summarize them in a non-technical way, and set them into perspective to the current policy.

Course structure
The course is targeted to Master students in economics during their first or second year.

The course is divided into two blocks. 1. A lecture block, which presents the central concepts and models, as well as their empirical applications. This block will be spread over the first part of the semester (8 lectures à 90 min). Students are expected to read in advance the articles mentioned in the reading list (2 per topic) and to be prepared to actively discuss these articles during the lecture. 2. Self-study block during which students will work on a blog article summarizing a policy-relevant recent research paper in the area of labor economics.

Term papers

- Term papers must be written without anyone else's help and in accordance with the known quotation standards, and they must contain a declaration of authorship.
- The documentation of sources (quotations, bibliography) has to be done throughout and consistently in accordance with the APA or MLA standards. The indications of the sources of information taken over verbatim or in paraphrase (quotations) must be integrated into the text in accordance with the precepts of the applicable quotation standard, while informative and bibliographical notes must be added as footnotes (recommendations and standards can be found, for example, in METZGER, C. (2017), Lern- und Arbeitsstrategien (12th ed., Cornelsen Schweiz).
- For any work written at the HSG, the indication of the page numbers both according to the MLA and the APA standard is never optional.

- Where there are no page numbers in sources, precise references must be provided in a different way: titles of chapters or sections, section numbers, acts, scenes, verses, etc.

- For papers in law, the legal standard is recommended (by way of example, cf. FORSTMOSE R. P., OGOREK R. et SCHINDLER B. (2018, Juristisches Arbeiten: Eine Anleitung für Studierende (6. Auflage), Zürich: Schulthess, or the recommendations of the Law School).
