Course information

Course prerequisites

Students should have a solid background in microeconomics (e.g. Microeconomics II or equivalent)

Learning objectives

- 0. A broad understanding of experimental methodology
- 1. A broad understanding of key behavioral economic concepts
- 2. The ability to form hypotheses based on behavioral economic concepts
- 2. The ability to design adequate experiments to address hypotheses

Course content

This course introduces you to field of behavioral economics. The course focuses on how findings from psychology can be incorporated in formal economic analysis by deviating from classical assumptions. Emphasis is on (i) interpreting empirical evidence, (ii) incorporating deviations in formal models, and (iii) exploring economic implications from these models.

A key instrument in behavioral economics are experiments. In this course we will also introduce the basic methodology of experimental economics. The focus is on experiments in the field of behavioral economics but we will also consider experiments from other fields.

Term papers

Term papers must be written without anyone else's help and in accordance with the known quotation standards, and they must contain a declaration of authorship which is a published template in StudentWeb.

The documentation of sources (quotations, bibliography) has to be done throughout and consistently in accordance with the chosen citation standard such as APA or MLA.

For papers in law, the legal standard is recommended (by way of example, cf. FORSTMOSER, P., OGOREK R. et SCHINDLER B., Juristisches Arbeiten: Eine Anleitung für Studierende, newest edition respectively, or according to the recommendations of the Law School).

Fact sheet version: 1.0 as of 30/12/2020, valid for Spring Semester 2021

The indications of the sources of information taken over verbatim or in paraphrase (quotations) must be integrated into texts in accordance with the precepts of the applicable quotation standard, while informative and bibliographical notes must be added as footnotes (recommendations and standards can be found, for example, in METZGER, C., Lern- und Arbeitsstrategien, newest edition respectively.

For any work written at the HSG, the indication of the page numbers is mandatory independent of the chosen citation standard. Where there are no page numbers in sources, precise references must be provided in a different way: titles of chapters or sections, section numbers, acts, scenes, verses, etc.
