Course information

Course prerequisites
The class is open for all students. A background in public policy or economics is helpful, but not required.

Learning objectives
Students will become familiar with the main concepts of tax policy, how taxation affects state capacity and redistribution and what factors drive tax policy. We will discuss historical developments, individual preferences and current policy issues. More broadly, students will continue to learn reading and discussing research articles and apply the learned content to a tax issue of their choice.

Course content
The modern state is a ‘tax state’ (Schumpeter 1918). The level and structure of tax revenue determines what a government can and cannot do, how many civil servants it can hire, how many services it can deliver, how modestly or ambitiously it can define its goals, and how effectively it can constitute its authority domestically and internationally. The level and structure of taxation also shapes the society the government governs. It determines who has to pay for the state and who not, who gains and who loses, who is empowered and who is disempowered. The aim of this class is to provide students with an historical and comparative understanding of taxation around the world. The class is based on the discussion of research articles. Active participation is required.

Term papers

Term papers must be written without anyone else’s help and in accordance with the known quotation standards, and they must contain a declaration of authorship which is a published template in StudentWeb.

The documentation of sources (quotations, bibliography) has to be done throughout and consistently in accordance with the chosen citation standard such as APA or MLA.

For papers in law, the legal standard is recommended (by way of example, cf. FORSTMOSER, P., OGOREK R. et SCHINDLER B., Juristisches Arbeiten: Eine Anleitung für Studierende, newest edition respectively, or according to the recommendations of the Law School).

The indications of the sources of information taken over verbatim or in paraphrase (quotations) must be integrated into texts in accordance with the precepts of the applicable quotation standard, while informative and bibliographical notes must be added as footnotes (recommendations and standards can be found, for example, in METZGER, C., Lern- und Arbeitsstrategien, newest edition respectively.

For any work written at the HSG, the indication of the page numbers is mandatory independent of the chosen citation standard. Where there are no page numbers in sources, precise references must be provided in a different way: titles of chapters or sections, section numbers, acts, scenes, verses, etc.

Supplementary aids
None

Examination languages
Question language: English
Answer language: English

Examination content

Each student will work on a research project of his/her own choosing related to the topic of class. This could include a specific tax (e.g. sin taxes, tampon taxes, ...), a specific topic (e.g. tax competition, informality, ...) or a specific reform/period in a country (e.g. historical development, restructuring towards a tax haven, ...). The students will present in class (30%) to gather feedback and then create their own podcasts (70%). These will be online for other interest students/lectures to hear and learn more about the political economy of taxation.

Examination relevant literature

The course literature will be uploaded till the end of April onto StudyNet as pdfs. It is expected that students search and find relevant literature for their own research topic.
Please note

Please note that only this fact sheet and the examination schedule published at the time of bidding are binding and takes precedence over other information, such as information on StudyNet (Canvas), on lecturers’ websites and information in lectures etc.

Any references and links to third-party content within the fact sheet are only of a supplementary, informative nature and lie outside the area of responsibility of the University of St.Gallen.

Documents and materials are only relevant for central examinations if they are available by the end of the lecture period (CW21) at the latest. In the case of centrally organised mid-term examinations, the documents and materials up to CW 12 are relevant for testing.

Binding nature of the fact sheets:

- Course information as well as examination date (organised centrally/decentrally) and form of examination: from bidding start in CW 04 (Thursday, 28 January 2021);
- Examination information (regulations on aids, examination contents, examination literature) for decentralised examinations: in CW 12 (Monday, 22 March 2021);
- Examination information (regulations on aids, examination contents, examination literature) for centrally organised mid-term examinations: in CW 12 (Monday, 22 March 2021);
- Examination information (regulations on aids, examination contents, examination literature) for centrally organised examinations: two weeks before the end of the registration period in CW 14 (Thursday, 8 April 2021).
