Course information

Course prerequisites

Interest in current foreign affairs issues; basic knowledge of international law and constitutional law (introductory course level is sufficient).

Learning objectives

- Students gain an understanding of the large variety of a lawyer's (and diplomat's) instruments from the international and domestic sphere when dealing with current transnational issues.
- Students get a grip on how this variety of instruments is put to use when dealing with practical issues affecting states, private corporations and individuals in the international realm.
- Students understand how dispute settlement and litigation work on international issues.
- Students learn how to frame and express international legal arguments in a practical sense.

Course content

This course looks at current international issues from the perspective of law: what role does law play when faced with digital data and artificial intelligence, the COVID-19 pandemic or climate change? To what extent are the traditional sources of international law able to address such current issues and what role do domestic legal principles play when addressing them? How can internationally protected rights be enforced through litigation and/or through diplomatic instruments? In order to discuss and answer these questions, the course is structured into 1 half-day seminar concerned with the theoretical framework and 3 half-day seminars dedicated to putting this framework into practice:

1. Theory Seminar: What is Foreign Relations Law? The intersection between international law and domestic law.
2. Practice Seminar 1: The emerging international legal framework for digital data and artificial intelligence.
3. Practice Seminar 2: The enforcement of international law through international and domestic litigation as well as diplomatic instruments.
4. Practice Seminar 3: The Covid-19 pandemic and climate change: the role of law in addressing global threats.

Course structure

The course is taught as a seminar (either in presence or online).

Course literature

Required reading will consist of selected chapters from textbooks as well as from relevant parts of case-law and legal opinions by governments. All required reading will be made available electronically to students via StudyNet.

Examination sub part/s

1. Examination sub part (1/1)

Examination time and form

Decentral - examination paper written at home (individual) (100%)

Examination time: term time

Remark

10-pages to be submitted by the end of the term

Examination-aid rule

Term papers

Term papers must be written without anyone else's help and in accordance with the known quotation standards, and they must contain a declaration of authorship which is a published template in StudentWeb.

The documentation of sources (quotations, bibliography) has to be done throughout and consistently in accordance with the chosen citation standard such as APA or MLA.

For papers in law, the legal standard is recommended (by way of example, cf. FORSTMOSER, P., OGOREK R. et SCHINDLER B., Juristisches Arbeiten: Eine Anleitung für Studierende, newest edition respectively, or according to the recommendations of the Law School).

The indications of the sources of information taken over verbatim or in paraphrase (quotations) must be integrated into texts in accordance with the precepts of the applicable quotation standard, while informative and bibliographical notes must be added as footnotes (recommendations and standards can be found, for example, in METZGER, C., Lern- und Arbeitsstrategien, newest edition respectively).

For any work written at the HSG, the indication of the page numbers is mandatory independent of the chosen citation standard. Where there are no page numbers in sources, precise references must be provided in a different way: titles of chapters or sections, section numbers, acts, scenes, verses, etc.
