Course information

Course prerequisites

This ambitious multi-disciplinary course builds on introductory knowledge in economics and political science.

Students with no prior knowledge or experience in economics and/or political science are required to familiarize themselves with the basics of economics and/or political science, respectively, before the beginning of the course. This can be done by studying the basics of economics and/or political science as specified in the list of prerequisite knowledge for MIA students that you find online in the Canvas room of this course.

In order to hone their skills in economics and political science, respectively, students are encouraged to attend the MIA mornings workshops 7,361 'Key Concepts in Politics' and 7,365 'Key Approaches in Politics' offered by Lina Seitzl, and the MIA mornings workshops 7,362 'Economic Principles' and 7,363 'Economic Reasoning' offered by Simone Balestra.

Learning objectives

Together, the two courses provide students with the necessary knowledge and skills to understand and analyze the dynamic interdependencies between politics, law, and the economy in today's world. Students learn to deal with the cross-disciplinary problems typical of International Affairs.

The following learning objectives should be attained after successful completion of both courses:

- Students demonstrate proficiency in analyzing current issues in International Affairs from various perspectives at an advanced level,
- Students have a thorough, integrated knowledge and understanding of advanced topics across the four multi-disciplinary decision-making arenas (i.e. politics, markets, firms, and courts),
- Students apply in-depth multi-disciplinary knowledge (concepts, theories and empirics) in an integral manner when addressing academic and real-world problems,
- Students exhibit a clear understanding and awareness of the global environment of business, economic, legal and political practices and processes, and integrate this awareness when addressing academic and real-world problems.

Course content

The compulsory core course 7,350 'International Politics and Market Economy' is designed jointly with course 7,352 'International Law and Business Strategy' (taught by Thomas Burri and Winfried Ruigrok).

Together, the two courses equip students with the knowledge and skills needed to understand some of the world's most pressing challenges. The goal is to enable students to develop original and critical approaches to global problems, challenging conventional frameworks and adopting a distinctive problem-oriented approach rooted in critical social enquiry.

The multi-disciplinary courses are centered around four arenas: Politics (i.e. political systems or organizations equipped with varying degrees of political authority, such as nation-states or non-governmental organizations); Markets (at the sectoral, local, regional, economy-wide, or global level where resources are (re-)allocated); Firms (i.e. corporate agents within the private business sector, including industries, establishments, and enterprises); and Courts (broadly understood in the sense of places where legal disputes of various kinds are settled, including courts and legislative bodies at the international, transnational, or constitutional level). This structure allows to move beyond classic distinctions of the four core disciplines (i.e. Politics, Economics, Law, Business), in the sense that it seeks to promote integrated thinking, critical analysis, and holistic learning.

This course covers the arenas Politics and Markets. After an introduction into the respective arena, five challenges in International Affairs will be addressed first from the perspective of International Politics (before the term break) and then from the perspective of Markets (after the term break). In each session, one challenge will be discussed. The five challenges are the following:

Challenge no.	Domain of the challenge	Questions to be addressed
	Introduction	What is the dominant logic of each discipline? How does this arena work? What are the leading questions?
1	Trade and investment	Backlash against globalization?
2	Finance	Shareholders or stakeholders? Out of control? Distributional issues?
3	Climate and environment	Can we afford sustainability? How to escape tragedy?
4	Development	Participation in the global system? End of Western dominance?
5	Conclusion: Power in the 21 st century	Who really governs today?

Discussing the same five global problems from the perspective of four different core arenas, the two courses aim to develop students' ability to recognize linkages and synergies between disciplines and to analyze pivotal political and economic challenges in more integrated ways.

Course structure

This course includes lectures and seminar groups. Students are expected to attend all sessions of lectures and seminar groups and participate actively in discussions. Readings must be completed prior to sessions.

One two-hour lecture will be held each week. Lectures generally build on the required readings. Attendance of lectures is essential for successful completion of the course. Students are given guidance on how to prepare for the examination during lectures.

Seminar group meetings led by teaching assistants are a vital addition to the weekly lectures. They provide opportunities for students to deepen knowledge and apply skills acquired during the lectures.

Course literature

A reader will be made available through Canvas.

Additional course information

Patrick Emmenegger is a professor of comparative political economy and public policy at the University of St. Gallen. He is the academic director of the PhD program in international affairs and political economy. See www.pemmenegger.com for more information on his research.

Simon J. Evenett has been Professor of International Trade and Economic Development at HSG since 2015. His research and teaching interests include trade policy, trade negotiations, trade wars, and business-government relations more generally.

In the case of the President's Board having to implement new directives due to the SARS-CoV-2 pandemic in AS2020, the course information listed above will be changed as follows:

- The course will be conducted online via the platform Zoom;
- The recordings of the course will not be saved;
- The lecturers will inform via e-mail on the changed implementation modalities of the course;
- There are no changes necessary to the course information. In addition, there are no changes necessary to the examination information.

Term papers

Term papers must be written without anyone else's help and in accordance with the known quotation standards, and they must contain a declaration of authorship which is a published template in StudentWeb.

The documentation of sources (quotations, bibliography) has to be done throughout and consistently in accordance with the chosen citation standard such as APA or MLA.

For papers in law, the legal standard is recommended (by way of example, cf. FORSTMOSER, P., OGOREK R. et SCHINDLER B., Juristisches Arbeiten: Eine Anleitung für Studierende, newest edition respectively, or according to the recommendations of the Law School).

The indications of the sources of information taken over verbatim or in paraphrase (quotations) must be integrated into texts in accordance with the precepts of the applicable quotation standard, while informative and bibliographical notes must be added as footnotes (recommendations and standards can be found, for example, in METZGER, C., Lern- und Arbeitsstrategien, newest edition respectively).

For any work written at the HSG, the indication of the page numbers is mandatory independent of the chosen citation standard. Where there are no page numbers in sources, precise references must be provided in a different way: titles of chapters or sections, section numbers, acts, scenes, verses, etc.

Examination content

The course 7,350 'International Politics and Market Economy' (this course, taught by Patrick Emmenegger and Simon Evenett) and the course 7,352 'International Law and Business Strategy' (the remaining course, taught by Thomas Burri and Winfried Ruigrok) coordinate examinations so as to make students think inter- and cross-disciplinary.

The examination of each course consists of two assignments, each contributing 50% to the final grade:

[1] Decentral examination paper written individually at home (50%)

Students have 48 hours to answer one essay question (out of two provided) and upload their answer electronically (max. 2'000 words). For this course (7,350), students answer the selected question from a political science perspective (= Essay 1). For the other course (7,352), students answer the same question from a legal perspective (= Essay 2). In total, students hence write two essays on the same question, one from a political science perspective and the other from a legal perspective. This examination takes place after the first half of the term.

[2] Decentral examination paper (voice over power presentation) recorded individually at home (50%)

Students have 48 hours to electronically submit a 'voice-over powerpoint' presentation (max. 5 minutes) they produced themselves in .mp4 file format. In the presentation students must answer one question (out of two provided). In this course (7,350), students answer the selected question from an economics perspective (= Presentation 1). In the other course (7,352), students answer the same question from a business perspective (= Presentation 2). In total, students hence produce two presentations on the same question, one from an economics perspective and one from a business perspective. This examination takes place after the second half of the term.

Students submit both Essay 1 and Presentation 1 to this course. The final grade for this course is the mean grade of the grade given by Prof. Emmenegger for Essay 1 and the grade given by Prof. Evenett for Presentation 1.
