Course information

Course prerequisites

No prerequisites have to be met.

Learning objectives

In this course, students will

- get a sense for what it means to live in poverty in low-income countries and for policies aiming at poverty alleviation,
- get a sense for and interpret the related recent empirical evidence in development economics,
- apply this knowledge to evaluate policies aiming at alleviating poverty and improving the lives of poor people in developing countries.

Course content

The course "Poverty Alleviation" will provide insights on what it means to live in poverty in low-income countries and on how such situations can be improved. Development economists such as the 2019 Nobel Laureates in Economics, Abhijit V. Banerjee, Esther Duflo, and Michael Kremer, have uncovered some surprising facts about the lives of poor people in developing countries. Empirical evidence from such studies and insights from economics help us to better understand the lives of poor people, the choices they make, and how poverty can be alleviated. Among other topics, issues related to health, education and finance will be discussed. For instance, one relatively cheap way to improve health outcomes is getting children immunized. However, immunization rates are often low in developing countries, even among people living near health centers. We will discuss explanations for low immunization rates and potential solutions to increase them. Furthermore, we will find out about the effect of soap operas on family size, whether microcredit or cash transfers can help people get out of poverty, plus many other topics. Students will get a sense for which policies can alleviate poverty effectively, and why others fail to have an impact. The students will apply their new knowledge to evaluate such policy interventions.

The following topics will be covered:

- Poverty traps
- Randomized controlled trials
- Health
- Education
- Family

- Credit, savings, insurance
- Agriculture, employment, entrepreneurship

Course structure and indications of the learning and teaching design

The course consists of weekly sessions of two hours. The course is split into lectures (input by the lecturer), presentations by the students and discussions.

Reading the relevant material, preparing a presentation and written papers, the students deepen their knowledge on the topics seen in the lectures. The discussions provide an additional opportunity for the students to reflect on the course content.

Course literature

Journal articles and other sources become available on Canvas during the semester.

Additional recommended reading: Banerjee, A. and Duflo, E. 2011. Poor Economics. Penguin Books.

Term papers

Written work must be written without outside help according to the known citation standards, and a declaration of authorship must be attached, which is available as a template on the StudentWeb.

Documentation (quotations, bibliography, etc.) must be carried out universally and consistently according to the requirements of the chosen/specified citation standard such as e.g. APA or MLA.

The legal standard is recommended for legal work (cf. by way of example: FORSTMOSER, P., OGOREK R., SCHINDLER B., Juristisches Arbeiten: Eine Anleitung für Studierende (the latest edition in each case), or according to the recommendations of the Law School).

The reference sources of information (paraphrases, quotations, etc.) that has been taken over literally or in the sense of the original text must be integrated into the text in accordance with the requirements of the citation standard used. Informative and bibliographical notes must be included as footnotes (recommendations and standards e.g. in METZGER, C., Lern- und Arbeitsstrategien (latest edition)).

For all written work at the University of St.Gallen, the indication of page numbers is mandatory, regardless of the standard chosen. Where page numbers are missing in sources, the precise designation must be made differently: chapter or section title, section number, article, etc.
